Chinese Growing Marine.

San Francisco's report that the Chirese are to take over for subsidized operation four of the Robert Dollar line of boats, is the most diverting topic heard on waterfront for months. What significance this move has is not determined yet to the satisfaction of shipping men, but it is believed to be a direct bid of the Chinese for their due share of Pacific shipping.

At present China's merchant marine consists very largely of the fleet of the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company, a fleet of between sixty and seventy coast and river boats. This is one of the greatest erates between all Chinese ports to both Japan and Slam. It is the foundation for a trans-Pacific fleet, as the existing lines would make the best feed system that could be secured, outside of the great Butterfield & Swire and the Jardine, Mathesen & Co. fleets, both of which are English

For several years the Chinese have been discussing the possibility of getting into the trans-Pacific business Their strongest hope has existed it the prospect of joining forces with American interests. Once a serious effort was made to unite the China Merchants' fleet with the Pacific Mail, under joint American and Chinese capital and manning the vessels largely with Chinese crews. But this failed, and since then it appears that the effort is taking material form through taking over a portion of the

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals decided against him and two of his convicted associates in New York a few days ago.

Francis X. Butler, lawyer and di rector, and W. W. Tomkins, head of the New York Selling Agency, are the two others named in the adverse decision. Their conviction, like Wilson's, followed indictments for using the mails in a scheme to defraud stock-buyers.

In Wall street, the bellef is current that the wireless gang's profits reached a huge figure. The "Colonel," entil he went to the Tombs after his conviction, led the life of a spender thereabout.
